glethorpe University began in 1838 in Midway, GA, (near Milledgeville). The main buildings on the campus were Thalian Hall, Central Hall, and the twelve dorm buildings. Central Hall was completed in 1840 by Joseph Lane, Sr. at a cost of $38,000.00. Thalian Hall was completed in 1860 by Joseph Lane, Jr. as a dormitory and meeting hall for the Thalian Society. The Society began in 1839 to promote "oratory, declamations, debating and other literary pursuits." It is one of the two remaining buildings at Midway now. The Midway campus flourished until the early 1860's when it had to close down due to the Civil War. Oglethorpe University attempted to reopen at Midway in 1866 but it could not maintain at that time and so closed its doors once again. Then in 1871 it was decided that it would be advantageous to relocate Oglethorpe in Atlanta, the new capitol, since Milledgeville was no longer going to be the hub of Georgia. During its relocation in Atlanta in 1871 Olgethorpe stayed in the present day Atlanta City Hall building. This revival attempt unfortunately also did not last. Finally the school was moved to Atlanta in 1915.

The first building erected was Hearst Hall. Hearst Hall has served in many capacities. Its third floor was once dormitories. Its basement, where the present day Bookstore is, was the old cafeteria. Lupton Hall also served as many different things. It had an indoor pool which spanned the length of the present day pit and the business office. Its third floor also served as dormitories for awhile. Lowry Hall was probably the most diverse in range of uses. It served as both boys' and girls' dorm rooms, at different times, and its top floor served as an apartment for the Men's Housing director Thalian Society Hall is one of the two remaining buildings of the old campus at Midway. This building served as a dormitory during the years Sidney Lanier attended Oglethorpe.

The third floor of the Thalian Hall was used by the Society for its meetings and social affairs. The plaster medallion on the ceiling from which a candle chandelier was hung dates back to the building's completion in 1860.

Central Hall was the main campus building at Midway. It contained a large Chapel which was surrounded by faculty offices, classrooms and a library. It also contained a museum in its

A far cry from present day Oglethorpe dorms. this is the only remaining one of the original twelve two-room dorms at Midway. Formerly there was no door in the center. Each room measured 18 feet by 18 feet. There were six of these dormitories in a row on either side of the campus, in front of Central Hall.

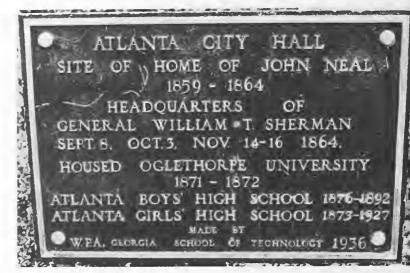

The future Ogelthorpe? No. but it could have been as of the plans drawn in 1913 for the expansion of the campus. Lupton, Hearst, Lowry and part of Faith were built before these plans were abandoned.

Married student housing? A natatorium? Community Faculty housing? This couldn't be Oglethorpe, could it? These were the plans for expansion drawn up in the 1940's.

Realizing that Milledgeville was no longer going to be the hub of Georgia, the present administrators tried unsuccessfully to relocate Oglethorpe into Atlanta in 1871. It was eventually moved successfully to Atlanta in 1915.

Ever wondered why you have to go outside to get from the financial office to the Career department? When James Lupton gave money in 1920 for the building he had it erected in three parts. The part with the bell tower was to be in memory of his mother, the middle part was in honor of his wife and the third part was to be an inspiration to his son.

The main campus as it stood in 1963 with the temporary science building and no who also happened to be a faculty member. Its basement was used for the Medical School at Oglethorpe and was later used for the science facility until the temporary wooden structure was erected for the science department. The addition of the buildings was completed with Goslin Science building in 1971. There have been many plans to expand the present campus but as it stands now the campus will probably remain the same forever.

Something Old, Something New And Something From the Future?

The Rich and Famous

illiam Randolph Hearst made several donations which totaled to be more than $330,000.00 to Oglethorpe over a thirty-four year span. During Hearst's last trip to Atlanta Dr. Thornwell Jacobs presented him with the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws on May 22, 1927. On this same day Hearst delivered the Baccalaureate address which dealt with "the great discoveries and inventions of the nineteenth century." One of Hearst's sons, John Randolph, attended Oglethorpe in 1927, and 1928. Dr. Jacobs went to see Hearst in California to ask for assistance in the purchase of the Silver Lake property. Hearst's response was, "Certainly, I shall take pleasure in giving it to you." Silver Lake was renamed Lake Phoebe in honor of Hearst's mother.

native of Cuba, New York, Harry Putman Hermance came to Atlanta in 1916, as an executive in the F.W. Woolworth Company. Hermance was elected as a trustee of Oglethorpe in 1917. One day several members of the football team approached Harry Hermance to ask for his assistance in developing the athletic program at Oglethorpe. Mr. Hermance's response was, "Boys, I don't know how much I'll be able to help but I'll sure do my damndest." Mr. Hermance told a group at a meeting on December 4, 1919, that he "had found a family" which would contribute $5,000.00 a year for the next ten years for the building of a stadium. Harry Hermance was referring to his family. In 1926, Dr. Jacobs presented Harry Hermance with an honorary degree of Doctor of Commercial Science.

Tollowing his mother's advice, Sidney Clopton Lanier began his studies at Oglethorpe at the age of 15. In 1860, he graduated from Oglethorpe and was valedictorian of his class. After graduation, Lanier worked as a tutor in ancient languages at Oglethorpe from 1860-61. While tutoring at Oglethorpe Lanier began to make plans to study in Germany like his professor, James Woodrow. The Civil War changed these plans. In 1861, he joined the Macon Volunteers. After returning home from the Civil War Lanier worked as a tutor, a hotel clerk and in 1868 he returned to Macon, Georgia, to read law in his father's office. In 1873, Sidney Lanier moved to Baltimore, Maryland. After moving to Baltimore Lanier played the flute in the Peabody Symphony Orchestra and served as a lecturer at Johns Hopkins University. While living in Baltimore, Lanier also spent time writing. Some of his most famous poems were written during this time. They were "Song of the Chattahoochee" and "The Marshes of Glynn," which were about his home state of Georgia.

Mr. George Stewart photographed this bronze bust of Sidney Lanier at the Milton S. Eisenhower Library, Johns Hopkins University. The bust was modeled by Ephraim Keyser.

Then Ernest Hartsock came to Oglethorpe in 1928, from Georgia Tech he brought with him the Bozart Press. Hartsock was the editor of the Bozart Contempary Verse, which was published bimonthly. This literary magazine had a wide circulation which included more thirty states, England, France and Canada. Hartsock was made professor of poetics at Oglethorpe. This distinction had never been used previously anywhere in the United States. Referring to Ernest Hartsock, Thornwell Jacobs said, "He had the heart and instinct of a true poet, and his love for poetry had completely mastered his life."

Toseph Mackey Brown was a member of the last graduating class from old Oglethorpe. After graduation in 1872, Brown spent several years associated with the Western and Atlantic Railroad. In 1909 he became governor of Georgia. He served a second term as governor from January 25, 1912, to June 28, 1913. After his career in politics Brown spent the rest of his life writing "cards" on such things as the Leo Frank case, World War I and the draft, women's suffrage, mob law, Bolshevism, religious matters and American-ohn Thomas Lupton was one of the early benefactors of the Oglethorpe established in Atlanta. Dr. Thornwell Jacobs spoke at the First Presbyterian Church in Chattanooga, Tennessee, on November 1, 1914. He told the congregation about his efforts to reestablish Oglethorpe University. After the service a man came up to Jacobs and offered to pledge $10,000.00 to the resurrection of Oglethorpe. This man's name was John T. Lupton. Mr. Lupton practiced law, served as the president of the First National Bank of Chattanooga and was the vice president and treasurer of the Coca Cola Bottling Co. Dr. Jacobs presented Mr. Lupton with the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. John T. Lupton gave a total of $1,018,000.00 to Oglethorpe.

Toseph LeConte, who received international fame for his published works on evolution and religion, physiological optics and geology, served as a professor at old Oglethorpe for one year beginning in January 1852. He was responsible for teaching a wide variety of classes. Among some of these were mechanics, physics, chemistry, geology and botany. In his teaching LeConte used scientific methods that were considered modern for his day. Although LeConte only stayed at Oglethorpe a short time, he said that his variety of teaching responsibilities gave him "excellent training" which increased his "interest in all departments of science."

ames Woodrow was appointed as professor of natural science at old Oglethorpe in 1853. After earning a Ph.D. at the University of Heidelberg he returned to Oglethorpe. With this degree Woodrow became the first teacher in the history of the state of Georgia to hold a Ph.D. While at Oglethorpe he gained a reputation as an inspiring teacher. In 1861, he left Oglethorpe to chair a position at Columbia Theological Seminary. James Woodrow became interested in evolution and finally concluded that it was probably true; although, he continued to believe in divine inspiration.

olonel Robert James Lowry came to Atlanta from South Carolina about the time of the Civil War. He and his father established the banking house of W.M. and R.J. Lowry. After the death of his father in 1887, Robert Lowry founded the Lowry Banking Company. Col. Lowry left his fortune to his wife, Mrs. Emma M. Lowry, to be converted to a memorial fund. Mrs. Lowry died in 1923, leaving $275,000.00 to Oglethorpe to found the Robert James and Emma Markman Lowry School of Banking and Commerce.

Trank B. Anderson, a graduate of the University of Georgia, came to Oglethorpe in 1917. While at Oglethorpe he served as an assistant professor of mathematics and as Athletic Director. In 1941, he was made Dean of Men. Frank Anderson left Oglethorpe in 1942, after several successful years as a winning coach and a professor.

Governor Roosevelt of New York was awarded an honorary degree by Oglethorpe University in May of 1932, before he delivered the commencement address.

Mayor of Atlanta, Ivan Allen received his honorary degree from Oglethorpe President Thornwell Jacobs.

Oglethorpe's Honorary Degrees went exclusively to women during the 1935 commencement. Among this group are Martha Berry, founder of Berry Schools, Caroline Miller, author of Pulitzer winning novel, "Lamp In His Bosom," Mrs. Sidney Lanier, and Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam.

This fall Sir Kenneth Dover of Corpus Christi College in Oxford, England spoke at Oglethorpe's convocation and received an honorary degree.

ress styles have changed a great deal through Oglethorpe's history. With an all male student body at the school's opening in 1835, the dress was typical of the period with dark suits, top hats and capes. From this point onward, Oglethorpe's dress styles basically followed trends in the country's fashion. We had flappers in the Roaring Twenties, "Sweater Girls" in the Fifties, bell-bottomed jeans, miniskirts, peasant dresses and long hair through the Sixties and the Seventies. Oglethorpe has seen changes in style, an evolution that has brought us to dress as we do now.

The 1930's bring in feminine flower-print dresses with drooping skirts, tilted hats worn over carefully curled hair, and gloves.

Later in the 1920's women's hemlines rise higher, revealing rolled stockings. Hair is cut short and is shingled.

Men in the 1800's dress in dark suits, often with striped pants. Accessories include capes and top hats.

Women's dress in the early 1920's is characterized by large hats, calf-length skirts and wraps made of fox-the entire fox!

Knit sweaters and narrow skirts become the rage in the 1950's for girls who admire Lana Turner, the "Sweater Girl."

Conservative, double-breasted suits and neat, creased trousers characterize the men's style of the 1950's.

Ankle strap shoes make their first showing in the 1940's.

The Mini—the most shocking fashion trend to hit America.

The Rolling Stones are models of men's fashion in the 1960's, including tight pants, worn low on the hips, brightly colored shirts and shoulder-length hair.

Fashion becomes unisex with the popularity of denim shown here in bell-bottomed jeans and bush shirts.

Some clothes are an ethnic medley—patterned after combinations of Indian, Asian, Mexican and Eastern styles of dress, accompanied by jewelry.

Love for simplicity and nature in the 1960's and 1970's increases the popularity of peasant dresses like those made by Laura Ashlev.

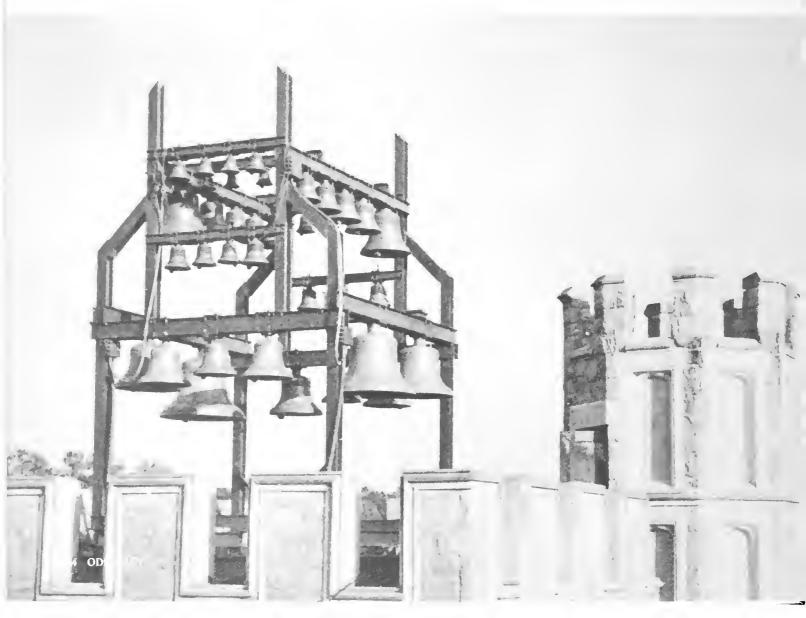

Patterned pants, knee-high boots, culottes, t-shirts, felt hats and fringed leather purses are all fashionable in the 1960's and 1970's.

Oglethorpe Odd Facts

Did You Know?

- *In the early 1930's, Oglethorpe had a radio station, WJTL, which was the first campus radio station in the United States and the first to conduct classes over the air.
- *Hermance Stadium was originally supposed to be a coliseum but is incomplete because its financeer, Harry Hermance, lost his money in the Stock Market Crash.
- *The original library was located in Lupton Hall and consisted entirely of the registrar area, the admissions offices and the Dean's offices and was not relocated until 1972.
- *The Crypt of Civilization located in Hearst Hall contains a Donald Duck doll.
- *The Crypt will be opened in the year 8113. *General David Sarnoff, who spoke at the closing of the Crypt, is the founder of RCA.
- *Thornwell Jacobs wanted to be buried under Lupton Hall according to his poem, "My Last Request".

- *Oglethorpe had its own printing press during the 1930's and the 1940's.
- *John Thomas Lupton bottled Coca-cola in Chattanooga.
- *The lower part of Hearst Hall was known as the "Passion Pit" when it was a dormitory.
- *There's a sun dial on Hearst Hall.
- *Sailing class was taught in the "pit" of Lupton Hall.
- *Thornwell Jacobs went to England to find General Oglethorpe's body and bring it back to the Oglethorpe campus but dropped the idea because of a controversy between Jacobs and the people of Savannah, who wanted the body buried in Savannah.
- *Original entrance requirements for freshman included examinations in Caesar, Cicero's Select Orations, Greek Testament and the ability to speak Latin and Greek fluently.
- *Oglethorpe once had a rule that specifically stated: that no person or persons would be allowed on the roof for any reason.

*There was once a rule that expressed that during hours of relaxation, no student had permission to go more than one mile from the college without permission.

*In the early 1940's the circus came to town and its elephant got sick and died. Medical students at Oglethorpe asked for its body and it was brought to the campus by Dr. John Barnard. The body is buried somewhere between Lowry and the Emerson student center. *Dr. Harry Dobson, noted music professor during the 1950's, lived in the top floor of Lowry when it was a men's dorm and owned 35 cats at the time of his death. It is rumored that you can still smell a cat litter odor in the library (Mr. Stewart).

*That Dean Mac's mother played "I Love You Truly" on the bells when two students became engaged on the traditional Senior bench one evening. She also used to play Oglethorpe favorites every Saturday after basketball games at Coach Pinholster's request.

Rush Week Highlights

The fall rush of 1984 was a great time for all involved. Chi Omega and Delta Zeta had a week full of rush activities the week before the men's rush. All four of the fraternities had successful dinners and parties, and gained many new pledges. The parties, of course, were unforgettable. Sigma Alpha Epsilon treated the students to a "Fallout Party," continuing in their tradition of great themes. Delta Sigma Phi had a beach party, while Chi Phi and Kappa Alpha sponsored their own diverse, yet fun activities. All things considered, Rush 1984 was a great success.

Dan Duncanson was one of the charter members who helped reactivate Delta Sigma Phi this year.

Laura Brian and Pam Galamek find time to compare their class schedules during Regis-

➡he first week at Oglethorpe each year proves to be a busy and interesting one for both new and returning students. Dorms were opened to resident students on Sunday, September 2, 1984. The freshmen and their parents enjoyed lunch in the cafeteria before attending afternoon meetings. The new students learned about the clubs and organizations at the Activities Fair. The clubs and organizations were represented by a speaker and a display table. On Sunday evening Dr. and Mrs. Pattillo gave a reception for the freshmen and their parents. The upperclassmen spent their Labor Day in a leisurely manor while the freshmen took placement tests. Registration was done differently this year as the freshmen registered on Tuesday before the upperclassmen. Classes began on Thursday. The first week of school came to a close with the Welcome Back Dance on Friday night.

Having dinner outside of the cafeteria gives Dean De Cencio, Deda Walker, Ilene Baylin and Brett Sleight a chance to visit.

Traditions of the Past any traditions have come and gone or undergone change on the Oglethorpe campus. Some of the more well known traditional events that are no longer a part of Oglethorpe are Rat Week, The Black and White Ball, The Senior Capping, Ghost Readings and The Masquerade Ball.

The underlying purpose behind Rat Week was to, "bind the members of the Freshmen Class in a spirit of comradeship and unity." It also gave the freshmen a chance to become better acquainted with their peers. All freshmen were regarded as rats from the first day they arrived on campus until the Black and White Formal. A rat was required to wear their rat cap everywhere during Rat Week. They were also required to wear an identification badge with their first and last names, hometown and major. The Rats of 1968 were required to know 1) How to sing the Alma Mater, 2) The "O" Book from cover to cover, 3) The Petrel Fight Song, 4) The History of Oglethorpe, 5) The Rat Code, 6) Saying over doorways, 7) Facts about tunnel, sun dial, crypt, bells, swimming pool, old gym etc. Ron Few, Library Assistant, was a freshmen rat in 1971, the last year that Rat Week was held. He remembered Rat Week as being, "A way of breaking the ice."

The Black and White Ball was a dance sponsored by the freshmen class. At the Black and White the Rat Court, which was composed of upperclassmen, announced King and Queen Rat.

The Senior Capping Ceremony marked the beginning of the academic year. The president of the senior class recieved his mortar board symbolically for his class from the Dean.

During the Halloween season the Lupton Auditorium became the home of ghosts, haunts and gobblins. The Oglethorpe Player sponsored a reading of spooky stories for students and faculty.

At one time the title of Lord and Lady Oglethorpe was limited to seniors. The winners were the male and female senior who best exemplified the Oglethorpe spirit.

Tsn't that dress a little old?

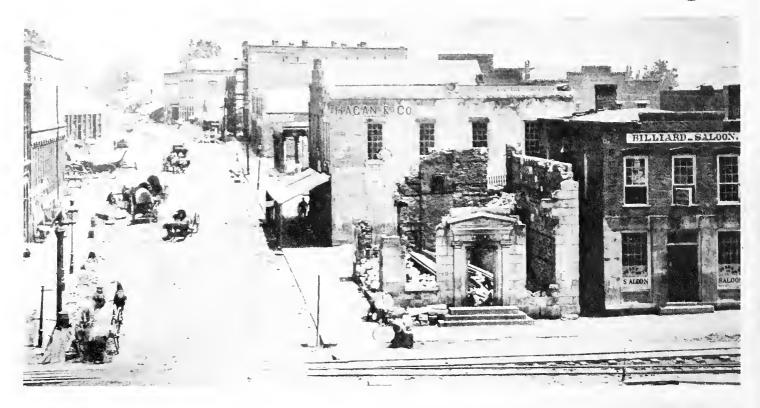

- —Not old; classic baby! Vintage clothing!
- Yucko!
- -Hey, did her pants shrink?
- —Shrink?! No, they're cropped. They're supposed to be short.
- —And her shoes! My mother wore heels like that when she was our age!
- -- Pumps are in-especially spiked heels and bright colors.
- —You want colors? Check out that psychedelic plaid!
- -Don't you love it?! Flourescent pink, yellow
- —That guy's dark jacket and narrow tie are great!
- —Yeah, but I prefer the casual look—jeans, button down shirts, sweaters and Topsiders. Especially the sweater because I can wear it!
- —A girl wearing a guy's sweater? Strange.
- —No, comfortable! Like these sweats—I live in 'em!
- —Well, everyone's dressed so differently, how do I know what's in style?
- —It all is! Just wear what you like and make it your own style!

Gone are the days of reconstructing a burned ruin, but still the city constantly changes her architecture, which includes an exciting new skyline. Atlanta should be proud of her accomplishments.

Weekends are made for...

Tt's Friday, the bell tower signals that it is eight o'clock. The students here at Oglethorpe have forty-eight hours to recover from the past week and prepare for future ones. How can forty-eight hours make up for one hundred and twenty hours of frustration? Different people have different ideas to answer that question. The conservative student spends his weekend doing laundry and typing his English paper. The moderate student goes to see a movie and reads a good book. The other 99.5% of the students do only one thing-PARTY!

The International Dinner provided a wonderful night of entertainment for all who attended. Members of the International Club contributed to the various food dishes that were served. Elise Witt and the Small Family Orchestra performed folk music and selections written by members of the orchestra.

What is your roommate's worst habit? Who does your roommate invite over often that you do not like? These are questions similar to those asked of contestants in the Roommate Game. Based on the television show "The Newlywed Game," the questions test the knowledge roommates have of one another. The event, sponsored by OSA, gave students a comic relief during the semester.

Kathy Messina, Jon Van't Riet, Jennifer Sierra, and Eyo Eyo enjoyed the food and entertainment at the International Dinner, which was held on November 10, 1984, in the cafeteria.

Mike Cheek captivates polo players, Deda Walker and Jill Rossen, with his officer and a gentleman charms.

Scott Soloway, emcee for the Roommate Game, is applauding for one of the many interesting responses given by one of the contestants.

The Halloween Dance, sponsored by the OSA and APO, was an opportunity for everyone to take a mid-semester break. Among all of those research papers, tests, lab experiments, and all night study sessions, students could put on their most outrageous costumes and dance the night away. Creativity and originality of costumes made an interesting topic of conversation for meeting exciting and interesting people. The music was provided by the Swinging Diamonds.

This group never clowns around. Enjoying the conversation are Beatriz Lopez, Fred De Loach, Cile Hardwick, and Randy Wade.

And The Winner Is . .

Appearing jubilant and excited, Bonnie O'Harrow receives a hug from Mary Howard after hearing her name announced as the 1985 Miss Yamacraw.

And the winner is . . . These are the words that proceeded Miss Bonnie O'Harrow's name at the Miss Yamacraw pageant, which was held on December 6, 1984. Excitement mounted throughout the pageant as the girls were judged on interviews, talent, and fashion. The talent ranged from dancing to singing to fashion design. In the end, the results were tabulated and the winners were as follows: Second runner up-Misty Reid, First runner up-Marsha McGuigan, and the 1985 MISS YAMA-CRAW-BONNIE O'HARROW.

Misty Reid, who was sponsored by the Chi Phi Fraternity, did a jazz dance to "Body Rock," a popular song from the movie of the same name.

The Student Education Club sponsored Marcia McGuigan, who played Albumblatt OP. 117. on the piano which helped her to be selected as the First runner up.

At one time Lord and Lady Oglethorpe was a more significant event involving crown bearers and a royal court.

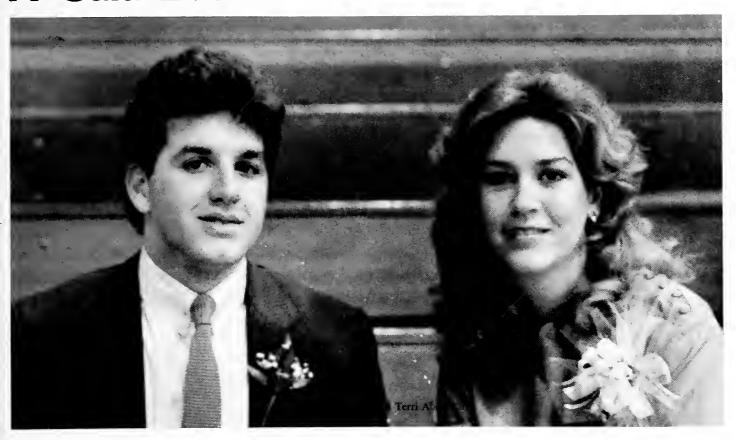

A Gala Event

Hat night at the basketball game Monday, January 28, started off Homecoming Week. Sunglasses, buttons, and bandanas could be seen on the more spirited students during the week. The cold damp weather on Friday forced the bonfire to be moved into Goodman lounge fireplace and students to coverup their black and gold outfits. But nothing could dampen the spirits of the students, faculty, and alumni on Saturday night. During halftime at the basketball game the cheerleaders performed a pompom routine to a song from Prince's "Purple Rain" album.

Dan Duncanson then introduced the Homecoming Court and the three final couples who were Frank Russo-Alesi and Terri Abernathy sponsored by Delta Sigma Phi, Chris Erckert and Sue McCue sponsored by Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Ken Jackson and Stacy Gates sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, Kappa Alpha won the banner contest, Delta Sigma Phi won the attendance contest and O.U. won the basketball game over Shorter.

After the students had a chance to enjoy some music at the dance Frank and Terri were named Lord and Lady Oglethorpe.

In the 150 year history of Oglethorpe the Greeks have under gone a great number of changes. In the late thirties and early forties, the number of Greek organizations numbered around fifteen. Of these there were eight Fraternities and Sororities. Then a period came in which these Greeks were asked to leave the campus. For a long time the school had no active Fraternal organizations. It was not until the late sixties that the Greek system was allowed to resume on OU's campus. From then on the Fraternities have continued to grow and improve. The latest of these improvements was the return of Delta Sigma Phi after a forty year absence. This trend will hopefully continue and cause the Greek system to be as strong as it once was. On the Sorority side of this all, things have not been going as well. The outlook, however, seems to bring a brighter side to the future of the sororities here at Oglethorpe.

Mr. John Hood, the most senior employee of the University, retired on December 18, 1984. Mr. Hood came to Oglethorpe in 1934 and was a member of the staff for fifty years, leaving only for military service in World War II. In recent years Mr. Hood was the custodian of Goslin Hall. Mr. Hood was here when the infamous elephant died and was in charge of burying it behind Lowry Hall. Mr. Hood spoke kindly of Oglethorpe and the staff. He also said that "Oglethorpe has treated me fine."

Since his arrival on the Oglethorpe campus in 1958, Mr. Leo Bilancio has been admired and well-liked by both faculty and students. The picture to the right was taken three years after his arrival. Throughout the years, Oglethorpe has seen many changes, from a change in location of the campus and new buildings, to changing presidents and hiring new professors, but it seems that

Some Faces Never Change

"Oglethorpe is not the same university anymore, but the situation changed for the better. The education has always been top quality, but the admission standards have been upgrading for the past ten years," told Dr. George Wheeler, the longest employed professor on campus.

"I am the survivor," added Wheeler, "When I came here there were only 165 students enrolled here. The buildings were all different too. Lowry had dorms on the top floor along with the science rooms on the second and first. Chemistry was the only science class taught out of Lowry Lowry. They set up a ram-shackle wooden building for all chemistry classes."

When asked to recall an event that really stood out in his mind he said

"When Paul Vonk was president, the university almost became Baptist affiliated. The faculty and others objected, and the school made the decision to stay secular."

Mr. Leo Bilancio, a professor of history since 1958, feels that the school has gone through many changes "When I first began teaching at O.U., the atmosphere was that of a closely knit family. There were only 186 students when I started here and it seemed as if everyone knew everyone else. Now there isn't that family feeling as before; the population of the university and the time period has changed that."

"Another drastic change," he added, "in the past 25 years has been in the constructive organization. Lupton housed the library, a swimming pool, a gymnasium, auditorium, faculty offices, student dorms, and a number of classrooms. Phoebe Hearst Hall was the girl's dormitory with the cafeteria located in the basement. At one point, faculty members lived in the second floor.

"The best change of the system which I can find is that the students seem to be more serious about their education, and though student/teacher relations are more formal now than ever. Oglethorpe still holds a close, friendly, small college atmosphere."

"I think I'm the soul survivor." No one can disagree that after 31 years of teaching at Oglethorpe University, Mr. George Wheeler has indeed survived all of the changes throughout the years. A contrast between the George Wheeler of 1956 and that of 1984 is pictured.

Old Habits are Hard to Break

for some Oglethorpe students, so after graduation they return to Oglethorpe University with their newly found talents to contribute to the campus as a whole ...

Hippies, hitchhikers, flower children, anti-war demonstrations and Vietnam enter the mind when one thinks of the late 60s and early 70s. It seems almost impossible to imagine Oglethorpe during that time period. But to Paul Hudson, Ronald Few and Dan Anglin, that period was Oglethorpe as they knew it as students.

"During the age of the Hippies you either joined college or you were drafted—needless to say the university's enrollment increased very rapidly," told Paul Hudson. "O.U. wasn't as radical as many schools. We held demonstrations at Piedmont Park, but for the majority, students didn't protest much," Hudson added.

Hudson, now the Assistant Registrar, attended Oglethorpe from 1968 to 1972. While here, Hudson had many unique experiences; "In 1969 we saw the original Fleetwood Mac in concert at the Fieldhouse."

Dan Anglin, Professor of Business Law, also attended Oglethorpe. "If I had to do it again, I would definitely come back. Oglethorpe is doing something right! Students can come here and compete with students at the Ivy League Schools. Oglethorpe has changed and so has its students; both have increased in quality and in standards."

Mr. Paul Hudson, graduate of the 1972 class of Oglethorpe University, has since returned to his alma mater to once again become involved with the Oglethorpe community. When not playing tennis, Mr. Hudson works in the registrar's office and teaches history.

Mr. Ron Few, another alumni of Oglethorpe University (class of 1975), has also returned to campus and is working as the assistant librarian, as well as taking a few classes.

The reestablishment of the Art Gallery not only enhanced the idea of a Liberal Arts Education but also gave the Oglethorpe Community

A Touch of Class

Striving to enhance the cultural environment of the Oglethorpe student and community, Oglethorpe University advanced the articular setting of the Art Gallery, located in Lowry Hall. By promoting exhibits in malls, Mr. Lloyd Nick managed to provoke the curiosity of many people in the Atlanta area. The interest of the Atlanta community was necessary to expand the gallery program. The terrific response received, along with the increased interest and support, had been very encouraging.

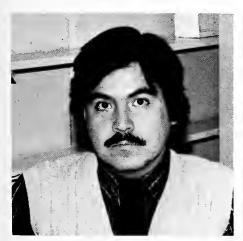

Nick stated that the main goals of the gallery were to not only bring in art that had not been shown previously in Atlanta, but also to present absolutely original exhibits never shown before. He hoped the Oglethorpe gallery would be the originating site of many future traveling exhibits that would go on tour to other universities across the nation. No one can argue the fact that the gallery at Oglethorpe has "definitely added a different dimension to the university."

With Young players and very intense competition the soccer team still managed to have their 100th win.

One Oglethorpe tradition since 1961 has been a soccer team. The 1984-1985 school year brought about a new tradition. For the first time in Oglethorpe's history there was a junior varsity soccer team. The varsity team was relatively young, with only two seniors out of twenty-two players.

The team faced one of it's toughest schedules, Coach Bucky Reynolds said, "It's the toughest they've had since I've been here." The team's record was 6-11-1. Coach Reynolds said, "The biggest problem on O.U.'s part was our lack of scoring." He expects next year's team to be more experienced. Although Oglethorpe's team was young, they had several outstanding accomplishments. Some players received awards of high recognition and this season, the team won their 100th game. "John Salamone," Reynolds said, "was all district and a good contender for all southern." Two other players received honorable mention for all district; Doug Schmitt and Eric Garvey. This year's captain was Rob Boggus and the co-captains were Mike Cheek and Eric Garvey.

Volleyball

The 1984 Lady Petrels was THE Team that clinched the District 25 championship. With six returning players and four newcomers, the team worked hard to set-up a reliable, synchronized bump, set, spike offense. Kathleen Ganey, in her first year of coaching, worked hard to train everyone to work together as a team and to build skill and confidence among the players. As demonstrated by their 9-O record in Division Three play, the OU volleyball team showed that cooperation and hard work can pay off. The weaker competition in the first half of the season put the Petrels at a disadvantage when faced with Division One teams. The lack of team morale, and tension on the court near the end of the season kept the team from playing up to their potential.

The team had planned to play in the NAIA Conference playoffs, but the players were disappointed when they were disqualified due to a technical error.

With the majority of the team returning next year, they are looking forward to an even stronger finish.

Coach Phil Ritchie, Tom Clements, Andy Provost, Bill Fair, Walter Thompson, Jon Van't Riet, Scott Smith.

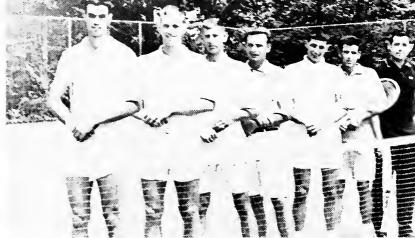

Tennis

Tennis has been a longstanding tradition at Oglethrope. It is one of the few sports to survive the decline in the sports program.

Coach Phil Ritchie, Sharon Wilcox, Summer McNair, Lil Klein, Tracy Goldman, Jennifer Perry, Veronica Maldonado.

The men's and women's tennis teams put in a lot of time and hardwork preparing for a busy spring schedule under Coach Philip Ritchie. The nice weather made it possible for the team to practice quite extensively during the fall semester.

Despite the cold weather, the team began practicing at the start of spring semester to prepare for a full schedule of 29 matches for the men and 22 matches for the women.

Senior player Kenny Gould had been plagued with injuries in past years. With treatment, his hamstring has become 80% stronger in just one semester. Coach Ritchie believes his team will do quite well this spring if they stay healthy. He is hoping several might qualify for NCAA nationals.

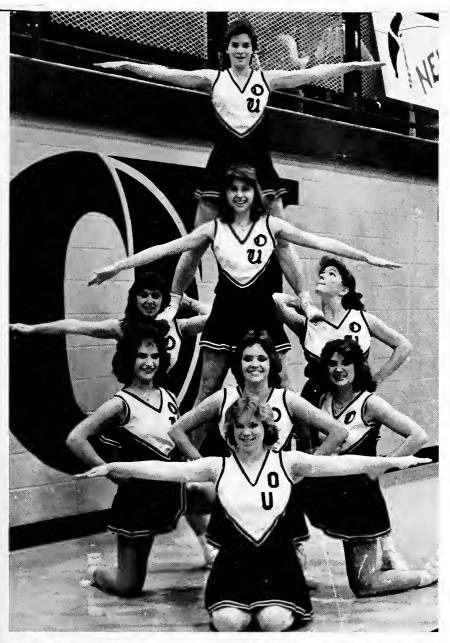

Misty Reid, Missy Sauer, Renee Byland, Deda Walker, Traci Bell, Lise Shade, Charis Andrews, Kathleen McDermott

Cheerleaders

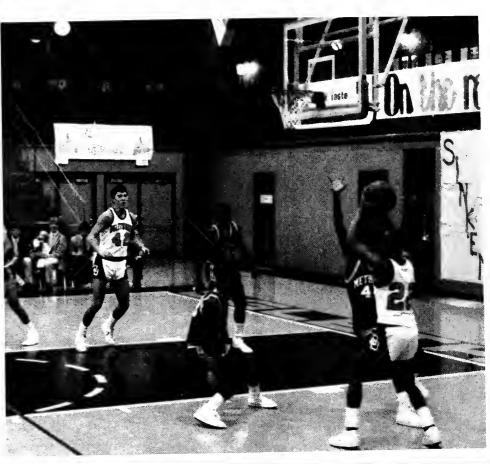

The 1984-85 basketball season was one of dedication and hard work for the cheerleaders. The long hours began in late September with tryouts. The cheerleaders practiced for several weeks before the first game. Captain Reneé Byland said that for the Homecoming game's routine, the squad practiced six days a week for two weeks.

This year's squad saw four new faces as well as four returning cheerleaders. This combination gave the squad a productive balance of experience and fresh ideas. First year cheerleader Traci Bell stated, "I couldn't have done it without the experienced girls to help me. They treated me as an equal and were always asking for new ideas."

The cheerleaders' busy season included cheering at all the home games, some away games, making signs, decorating the locker room and planning Homecoming activities, such as spirit week and the bonfire. Reneé Byland summed up the season, saying, "All the cheerleaders are great! This is the most spirited squad we've had in the three years that I've been here. We've done a lot for the school."

Basketball

A glimpse of the past petrels who were as hard as opponents then as we are now.

Basketball

After Christmas break Oglethorpe's basketball team basically started over with a new team. Transfers Kitt Steppe and Joe Granger became eligible to play during the winter break, O.U.'s team won six of its first seven games during second semester. Both players became strong rebounders. Freshmen—Alan Royalty moved into the starting line up second semester and has made important contributions to the team according to Coach Jack Berkshire.

The team has changed a lot but Coach Berkshire believes they are playing better.

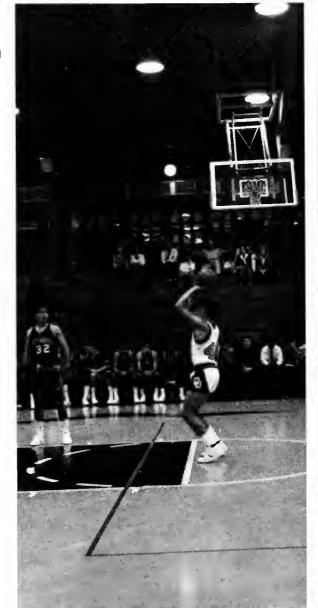

Willie Lawton has been playing well and moved up to be the leading scorer during the second half of the season.

The other Senior player, Bruce Benton, was bothered by a thumb injury and missed a week due to a flu late in January. Bill Sherwood moved into the starting position and did quite well according to Coach Berkshire.

"Bruce will be important to us down the streach," added Berkshire. Although he didn't start for a while, he will be playing a great deal. Reserve guards Ken Ozment and Scott Boynton were both very important to the team, especially in the first part of February.

O.U. was looking to finish in the top four teams in the district. A crucial game came late in the season against Georgia Southwestern on the road.

Wally Strom, Phil Qualter, Glen Dubrowsky, Eric Drick, Greg Hightower, Richard Briggs, Ron Vaughn, Marshall Nason

Cross Country

This year's cross country team was a team that was comprised of many hard workers. Marshall Nason, Cross Country Coach, said of the team, "They were a good bunch."

The O.U. team had only two Seniors this year and were relatively inexperienced. One team member, Freshman Richard Briggs, went to NAIA nationals. Nationals were held in Kenosha, Wisconsin, on November 17. The team's best times were at NAIA district 25 championships. The team showed their best effort, according to Nason, at the O.U. invitational.

A Special Thanks goes to:

Marty, who was more like a co-editor than an assistant editor. Without her hard work and dedication, this book would not have been possible

Angela, for putting together the new Student Life section with Jackie, for drawing the ad section layouts, and especially for doing so much to improve the quality of the Miss Yamacraw Pageant.

Stacey, for putting together the Organizations section for the second year in a row almost single handedly.

Jacqueline Woodard 46, 80, 121

Joanne, for doing an excellent job with the instructors layouts and helping with the index. Johnny, for his willingness to help in everyway he could.

Terry and Kaylen, for taking pictures.

John, for taking care of the survival kits.

Sue and Jackie, for their help with the Miss Yamacraw Pageant.

Art Williams our Herff Jones Yearbook Representative

My Mother and Father for their help and support.

Diane Dubay-Editor

Dedication

Mr. Chandler with his Rolls Royce.

Mr. Stewart at the library.

This yearbook is dedicated to our librarians, Mr. Chandler and Mr. Stewart. The Yamacraw staff greatly appreciates all the assistance that these men gave us when we were preparing the historical sections of this yearbook. We are indebted to them for the time and effort they spent locating books, information, and pictures for us. We also thank them for their cooperation and understanding ways.

150 years of excellence celebrated with style

Oglethorpe University proudly celebrated 150 years of excellence on February 13. The activities had originally been scheduled for February 12, but an unexpected snow storm forced the event to be rescheduled.

Although some of the distinguished guests were not able to be present on the thirteenth, the O.U. players performed The Oglethorpe Story to a near capacity crowd. After the play, the cast and crew, as well as many distinguished and honored guests gathered in Emerson Student Center for a luncheon, where they were entertained by the University Singers.

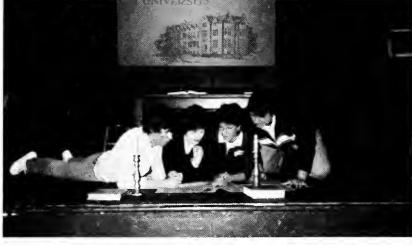

Lloyd Nick and Mr. Chandler seemed pleased as many guests, students and faculty members proceeded to Lowry Hall for the opening of an art exhibit depicting the history of old and new Oglethorpe.
